Geraldine Doogue
in conversation with

Father Timothy Radcliffe OP

A former Master of the Order of Preachers (Dominicans) and described as the "the monk who is a prophet for our times", he addresses questions such as "What are modern Westerners really searching for?" and "Why is spirituality on the rise and religion on the defensive?"

He is a prolific writer and his titles include 'What is the point of being a Christian', 'I call you friends' and 'Seven last words'. His latest book, "Why go to Church? The drama of the Eucharist", was chosen by Rowan Williams, Archbishop of Canterbury to be his Lent Book for 2009.
